MRS. BERTRAM BLUMENTHAL
Whose marriage took place last Thursday. Mrs. Blumenthal will be remembered as Miss Florence Wax.

THE extreme cool weather in this part of the country has resulted in the continued wearing of heavier and darker clothes than is usual for early June, and the two-piece walking suit just at present is de rigueur, not to mention the waterproof top coat and umbrella. Mrs. Harry C. Thayer, one of the most attractive of the younger matrons, wears a smart tailleur of dark blue gabardine. The coat is cut on incroyable lines and is given a military aspect by the use of braid and small buttons as trimming. Mrs. Thayer wears a small close-fitting hat of black hemp trimmed with up-standing gaura feathers.

Another good looking street suit of navy blue is worn by Mrs. A. J. Antelo Devereaux. The jacket, which reaches to the hips, is worn over a double skirt, the under part of which is plaited. Worn with a small round sports hat of panama, with a dark blue band, the effect is extremely smart.

Navy blue also proves most becoming to Mrs. J. Walter Steel, who, with a short-jacketed suit, wears a hat of very coarse black straw with two black quills flaring at adverse angles.

The few warm days we had afforded an opportunity for milady to "sport" a few of the summery frocks with which she has provided herself. A becoming one of a simple blue chiffon was worn by Miss Fanny Wain. The gown, which was of chiffon over taffeta, had flounces of the latter on the full skirt, while the bodice was trimmed with quillings of chiffon and a collar of cream lace. Miss Wain wore a hat to match, of dark blue chiffon with a transparent brim and trimmed around the crown with small bright-colored blossoms.

One of the most attractive frocks seen this spring was worn by Miss Gladys Snellenburg recently. The material was seaweed green charmeuse, the bodice was fitted snugly and was devoid of trimming except for the sheer collar and cuffs of cream-colored lace, and the skirt was formed of a succession of scalloped flounces, each flounce becoming narrower toward the hem of the frock, which revealed slippers of fawn-colored kid, with hose to match. Miss Snellenburg's hat was a medium-sized sailor of black straw covered with tulle and with a transparent brim of tulle.
